Grease management is Fire risk management

Oil, fat and grease build-up is a major factor in commercial kitchen fires.

Flammable deposits accumulate rapidly in extraction ductwork, canopy plenums and hard to reach areas; build-up occurs in-between manual cleans and tricky places can be left uncleaned all together... all creating a fire hazard.

Imagine how an automatic and continuous degreasing and cleaning system would help reduce the fire risk and claims.

Which is why Ecofix should be part of your fire risk management approach!

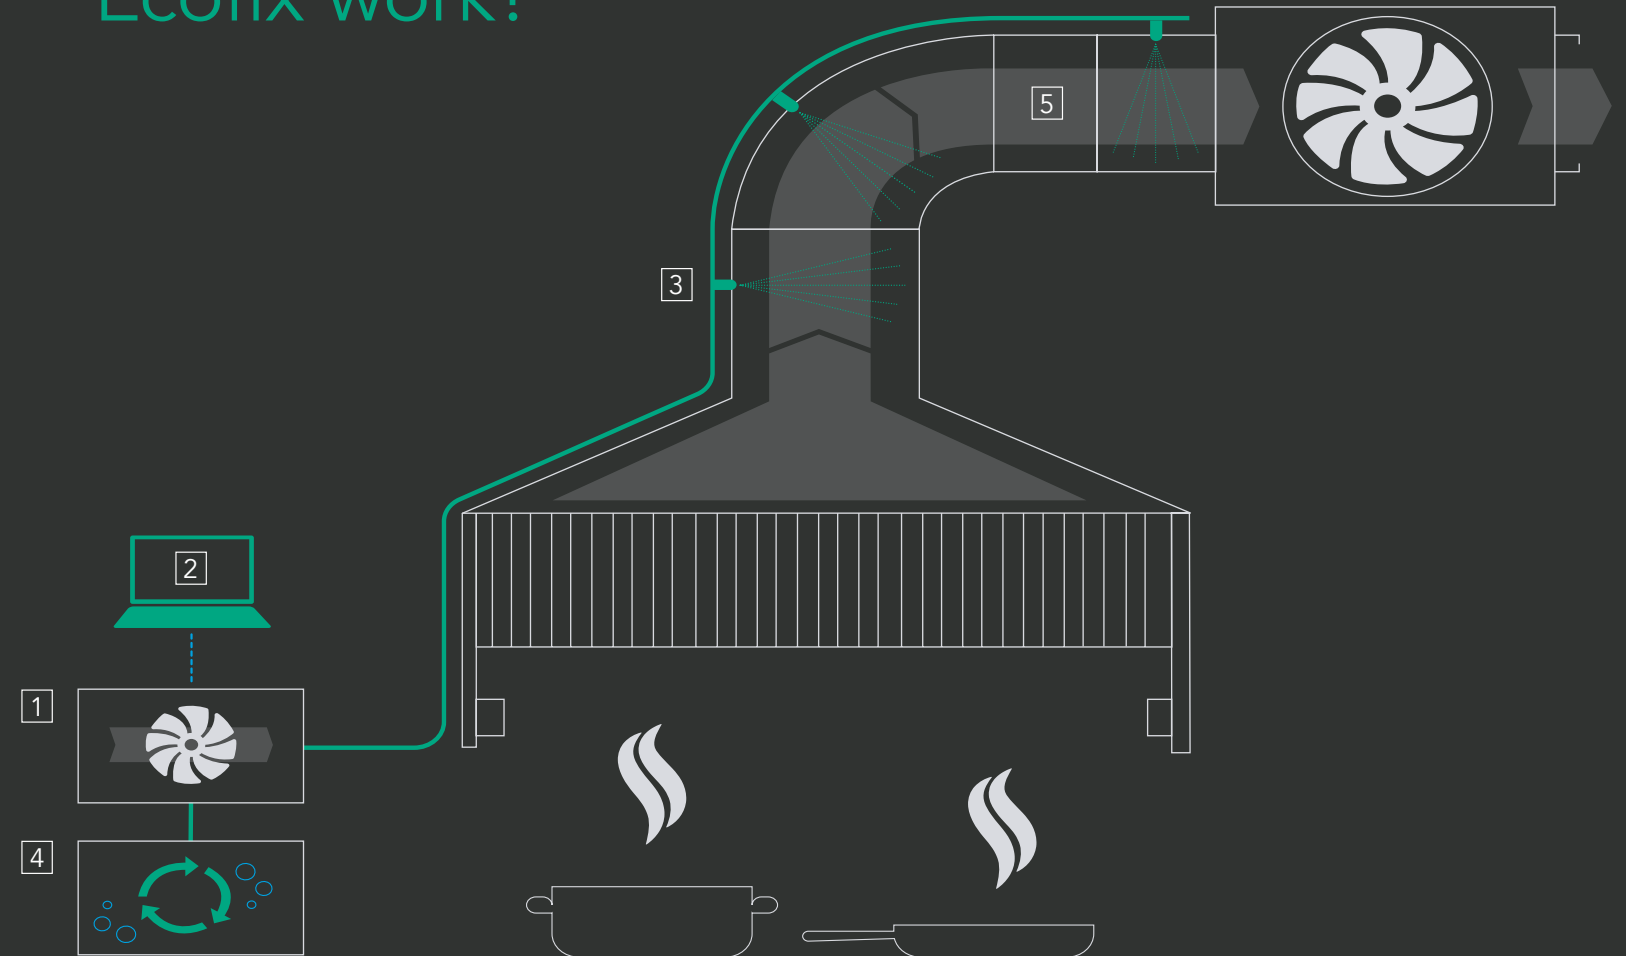

Our aim is to help commercial kitchen operators and their insurers reduce fire risk, which can only help reduce the number and size of fire related insurance claims.

Using advanced biological technology, Ecofix is designed to do exactly that.

So, how does Ecofix work?

- 1 Pump draws the chemical and bio-fluid from the containers, dilutes it with water and pumps to the nozzles via the hose.
- 3 Injector nozzles mounted in the duct, fitted every c.2 metres.
- 5 The delivery hose is connected to all the nozzles.

- 2 Control system controls the timing of the spray delivery. Also includes remote access unit to alert Quintex of any issues and allow for remote diagnostics and configuration.
- 4 Biofluid is pre-incubated with nutrient to speed reaction time before being injected. The delivery hose is connected to all the nozzles.

Ecofix is a safe, eco-friendly, patented Grease Management System which operates continuously to help maintain grease levels within TR19 guidelines at all times

Efficient grease management is vital for effective fire risk reduction in commercial kitchens. So... does your insurance offering include discounts for businesses which already have – or commit to having - Ecofix installed
